

A GUIDE TO RESIDENTIAL ASBESTOS ABATEMENT

A Brief Description of Asbestos

Asbestos is a microscopic fiber that has been bound together with other products in varying amounts to form a matrix that is usually not hazardous when left undisturbed. However, the process of removing the material can release asbestos fibers from the matrix, especially during demolition, remodeling and renovation activities. Since 1992, AQHI, Inc. has been removing asbestoscontaining materials from homes, schools, hospitals, commercial facilities and government buildings.

Although asbestos-containing construction materials are no longer manufactured, they are still common in thousands of applications, including acoustic ceiling texture, floor covering, roofing, heating duct insulation and drywall joint compound.
